Managing Partner's Letter 2012

As we prepare to do business in the new year, The Dorf Law Firm is proud of its achievements in 2011 and looks forward to an outstanding 2012. With six different practice areas, the firm continues to grow and expand its capabilities to serve clients in a wide range of matters with the utmost efficiency.

This year alone, the firm has welcomed four new attorneys to the Litigation Department which is thriving under the leadership of Partner and Litigation Director, Jonathan B. Nelson, Esq. Joining the team were Jessica J. Kastner, Esq. and Rod Biermann, Esq. And to give the firm more presence and scope in the financial services arena, the department's Creditors' Rights practice group has been restructured and is now successfully operating under the leadership of Department Head, Denise E. Singh-Skeete, Esq., with the expert assistance of Associate, Sonia J. Baez, Esq.

To streamline and improve office operations, update technology and maximize productivity in general, the firm elevated William Beaver to Executive Director. The addition of essential support staff has taken efficiency to the next level. Two new Legal Assistants in the Litigation Department have facilitated the prompt handling of client matters. A new Manager to oversee day-to-day operations in Creditors' Rights practice group has ensured the timely processing of all documents with an exacting attention to detail.

Throughout 2011, we have continued our commitment to knowledge enhancement through such endeavors as continuing legal education programs, conferences, seminars and webinars which enable us to offer our clients current, diverse and comprehensive counseling.

Communicating the firm's message of added value and dedication to achieving results remained a priority throughout the year in our quarterly newsletter, website, e-blast updates, seminars and events and print and online efforts. And the firm's "personality" was regularly conveyed in Facebook features and photos, magazine articles and even in the holiday cards photographed and designed especially for our clients.

I personally want to thank all those that have made our growth possible over the last several years. We are looking forward to making great strides in 2012 and invite you to visit our new corporate offices in Rye, New York, after our relocation this spring. Currently under design and construction, our new office space, which covers more than 15,000 square feet, will enable us to welcome our clients and serve them in an even more comfortable efficient manner.

To you and yours a healthy, prosperous and happy new year. Many thanks for all your support.
